1. An extensive search through Headquarters files failed to uncover the [Deryabin] report concerning a former member of the WW II German undertaking "Zeppelin." However the report certainly existed, and [Deryabin] remembers it was passed to CATIDE on at least two occasions. Once when the [Deryabin] German reports were passed to @FLEMING, and again when the same reports were passed to @STURM, then Chief of CR. It is recalled that the subject of the report did not contain the word "Zeppelin." [Deryabin] maintained a file of Yellow Memos of the [Deryabin] reports passed to CATIDE in the top drawer of his safe. He cannot recall if the file remained there after his departure, or if he turned it over to [Deryabin]. Perhaps some of the above will furnish a clue leading to the recovery of the report. It seems rather strange that CATIDE would have misplaced two copies, MLB one, and Headquarters at least several. You might also inform @FLEMING that @STURM received a copy just in case he had forgotten. Please let us know whether you have any success in locating the report. 2. [Deryabin] was re-queried concerning "Zeppelin." He came up with a garbled version of what he now (10 years later) calls "Zeppelin." Although his recollections are somewhat hazy on this point, it is obvious he is talking mostly about HACKE, but not too clearly. A copy of his report is attached for @FLEMING. Despite its inaccuracy in several respects it is, nevertheless interesting.
